NARRAGANSETT SCHOLARSHIP

—◆— FOR UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS —◆—

The URI Narragansett undergraduate scholarship provides full, in-state tuition and fees for up to four years to students of Narragansett ancestry who have been accepted to a URI undergraduate program. It also includes an additional grant of up to $5,000 based on full-time enrollment.

See eligibility criteria for details.

This scholarship is only available for members of the Narragansett Indian Tribe. To qualify you must submit a tribal enrollment identification card or an official letter from the tribal administration that confirms membership through a direct family member (parents).

ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA

In addition to being a registered member of the tribe students be accepted into an undergraduate degree program*, and, have an official FAFSA on file and all verification requirements completed (the FAFSA must be completed annually during the course of the students URI career in order to maintain their scholarship).

- * For programs with special undergraduate program fees and charges, awards may be changed at the discretion of the University. The tuition scholarship amount is reduced by merit awards, the Hodge grant, and tuition waivers.
- + All awards will be reduced/pro-rated (including $5,000 award) if a student is enrolled part-time.

Funding is available for up to 4 years, with consideration for additional undergraduate degree support upon review of the student's academic record.

Recipients must meet Satisfactory Academic Progress (SAP) standards toward completion of degree requirements to continue to be eligible for the scholarship and supplemental support grant.
